MUNITIONS BLAST TURNS SOUTH AMBOY INTO SHAMBLES; 4 KNOWN DEAD AND 500 INJURED AS FOUR BARGES ARE BLOWN UP

16 Persons Missing — Fear is That Death Toll Will Climb Higher As Many Are On Critical List — Town Rembles Bombed-Out World War II City — Disaster Units from Far and Near Aid.

By James L. Kilgallen
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)
SOUTH AMBOY, N. J., May 20—(INS)—Four barges loaded with 500 tons of munitions blew up in a pillar of flame and smoke at a South Amboy dock last night, turning the town of 9,000 into a shambles.

There were four known dead and more than 500 injured. Sixteen persons were missing and it was feared the death toll would climb higher among many reported on hospital critical lists.

South Amboy resembled a bombed out World War Two city today as disaster units from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania aided the homeless and wounded.

Three bodies were recovered on the scene but only one of the dead, Frank Cinelli, 25, of Jersey City, was identified. Syder Hagen, of Brooklyn, later died of burns and lacerations.

Rescue workers searched for the longshoremen's crew transferring the munitions from railroad cars to the barges when the blast occurred. It was feared they may have been hurled unconscious into the water.

At least 3,000 of the 4,000 homes in the Raritan Bay community were damaged by the blast which sprayed live shells over a large area.

The explosion touched off brief panic in South Amboy and other New Jersey towns bordering the lower New York Bay. Many persons said their first thought was that it was an atom bomb explosion.

The blast blew out windows and shook buildings as far as 20 miles from South Amboy.

Martial law was declared by Governor Alfred E. Driscoll, and early today 1,500 soldiers, sailors, marines and state policemen patrolled the streets to keep order and prevent looting.

South Amboy General Hospital was jammed with 150 injured, many cut by flying glass and debris. Perth Amboy Memorial Hospital had 100 more and the overflow was sent to New Brunswick, 20 miles away, and other communities.

Lines of anxious relatives formed at the hospitals to inquire about the fate of the missing and injured.

The Eastern Area Red Cross headquarters announced that South Amboy had been designated a disaster area. All resources were mobilized for emergency work. Blood plasma was sped to the scene of the blast from New York City 25 miles away.

The explosion caused millions of dollars worth of damage. The greatest damage was done to the Pennsylvania Railroad's yards and docks where the blast occurred. An official estimated the damage to the railroad at more than $5,000,000.

AEROMODELERS' SECOND ANNUAL MODEL PLANE CONTEST AND AIR SHOW TO BE HELD ON LOCAL FIELD ALL DAY TOMORROW

Tomorrow is the day for the Bristol Aeromodelers' second annual model plane contest and air show. All preparations have been made and if the weather is favorable most of the topnotch model plane fliers from Southeastern Pennsylvania, along with crowds of interested spectators are expected to visit the affair.

The contest will begin promptly at nine a. m., and will continue until five p. m., and will be held on the club's Model Airport on Route 13 across from Terrace No. 1, between Green Lane and Beaver street. Up until two p. m., the flying activity will consist of individual flights and record trials in the speed, stunt, and team racing time trials. At two p. m., the 1½ mile heat will begin with the five and 10 mile feature races to follow soon after. The judging of the beauty event will take place at three p. m., and all winners will have to fly their craft in order to qualify for prizes.

The speed event will continue throughout the day. Judging of the speed models is done by timing each one for a ½-mile course consisting of a pre-determined number of laps on standard sized control lines. Each model and control lines are to be checked to see that they conform to the AMA safety regulations. Some of these models will reach speeds of nearly 150 miles per hour, while those in the smaller classes will fly at speeds nearing 100. Model classes are broken down into four classes depending upon the size of the engine used. Most of the competitors in the speed events, will be using high speed engines that have been "souped up" and re-designed. During the speed flights the contest will take on the atmosphere of a real air race with the smell of burning castor oil and the whine of the engines. Stunt models will be in the air nearly all day with the flier putting them through as many different stunts as possible, in order to get a high score of points. Stunts such as "square loops", "four leaf clovers", "inverted take-offs", "horizontal figure eights", "glider pick-ups", and "inverted flights" will be tried. Various number of points are awarded for each stunt depending upon the manner in which it is executed. An attempt to establish a

THREE APPEAL FOR MERCY TO STATE

Feasterville Gang Asks State To Grant Life Terms Instead of Death

APPEAL IS OPPOSED

HARRISBURG, May 20 — INS—Three Philadelphia men doomed to die June 26 for the 1947 Feasterville Inn holdup slaying of two men, yesterday appealed to the State Pardons Board for mercy.

David Darcy, 24, appealed for life imprisonment on the basis that childhood diseases and injuries affected his mentality and led him from a respectable youth to a wild holdup spree.

Other commutation pleas were lodged by Harry Zeitz, 26, and Harold Foster, 25, who with Darcy were convicted of killing bystander William Kelly, 38, of Trevose.

A fourth member of the gang, Felix Capone, 18, pleaded guilty and is serving life in the Eastern Penitentiary.

The December 22, 1947, robbery also brought death to another patron, Allen Hellerman, 49, of Philadelphia who died two years later of a neck wound inflicted during the holdup. Hellerman was left a hopeless invalid.

Darcy was represented before the Board by Philadelphia County Commissioner Morton Witkin who said that as a youth Darcy "suffered every conceivable kind of medical ailment."

Bucks County District Attorney Willard S. Curtin opposed the appeal, saying the "situation was not one of a poor misguided boy."

"This was a group of hardened boys who started their active crime career in and about Philadelphia on November 30, 1947," Curtin said.

'FIRE-HAPPY' FIREMEN STRONGLY DENOUNCED

Fire Police Ass'n of Bucks County Has Session At Quakertown

ALSO SCORE JUSTICE

QUAKERTOWN, May 20 — Denouncement was made at a meeting of Bucks Co. Fire Police Association, Inc., here, this week, of firemen who follow their own fire engines bumper-to-bumper enroute to a fire, and also of a Bensalem township justice of the peace who is said to have paid a fine himself rather than "crack down" on a Phila. violator.

An Eddington fire policeman, who said that an "active" fireman followed the fire engine so closely that, when the engine wanted to back up, two other cars had to move back before the fireman's car could budge, was vehement in his denunciation of "fire-happy" firemen.

"The man, whose car was so close that the fire engine couldn't make a turn because the bumpers were too close, was charged with following a fire engine too closely. The justice of the peace threw the case out and told me that if it went to

Intensive Man-Hunt On — Bristol Firemen Flood Hold-Up Area with Light to Aid Police in Fine-Tooth-Comb Search for Clues — Trio Picked Up in Philadelphia Not Identified by Victims — Bandits Believed To Have Secured Less Than $100.

CROYDON, May 20—One man was shot dead and another was beaten severely over the head when four of the staff of the Safe Food Market here were held-up at about 9.40 last evening. The quartette was held up at pistol point by two armed men as they left the market through a rear door facing the P. R. R. tracks.

The dead: David Sklar, 45, 511 East Wadsworth street, Philadelphia.

The victim beaten over the head: Allen Ostroff, 35, 7949 Fayette street, Philadelphia.

Sklar and Ostroff are brothers-in-law.

The other two of the four held-up were Peter Harkins, 27, 2308 N. Bouvier street, Philadelphia; and Harry Gouddy, 44, 4253 N. Marshall street, Philadelphia.

Sklar, one of the owners and president of the Safe Food Markets chain and who managed the handsome new super market here, was shot dead in cold blood as he lay on the ground after being beaten, according to Harkins.

The story, as related by the three surviving members of the group, is that all four left the market through the rear door facing the P. R. R. tracks. As they left the store one of the four noticed two men standing in the shadows. Sklar's attention was called to the men and he called to them, asking who they were and what they wanted. They answered and he asked them to come out into the light so that he could see them. It was then that Sklar and his three co-workers were ordered to stand up against the wall of the building. It was then seen that the pair had guns, and Sklar and the others lined up against the wall. The bandits searched all but Gouddy, who had run and made the turn around the corner of the building, running to the Croydon Diner, from where he called police.

After the three remaining men had been searched they were ordered to lie down upon the ground. Harkins says that he dropped to the ground as one of the bandits aimed a blow at him. Both Sklar and Ostroff were beaten, and Sklar was shot as he lay upon the ground, according to witnesses.

The .38 caliber bullet went directly through Sklar's heart and out his back. The right side of his head was cut as if from a blow of a pistol butt. Sklar's wallet, with what personal money he had with him, was taken, as was the wallet of Ostroff, containing $60.

Harkins' wallet was thrown back at him, when he told the bandits that he was only "a working man." Harkins is a meat cutter and works in the rear room of the market.

It is believed the bandits got less than $100.

Ostroff was severely beaten about the head and right arm. He was treated at the Harriman Hospital, Bristol, where all were taken by the Bucks County Rescue Squad.

Gouddy succeeded in calling Chief of Police Joseph Sander, of Bristol Township, who rushed to the scene. The Bristol police were called as were also the Pennsylvania State Police at Langhorne barracks. Officer Morris, who was on desk duty at Bristol police headquarters, broadcast what descriptions were available, as did also the State Police, and shortly thereafter three men were picked up in the 25th District in Philadelphia. Bristol Police Chief Jones, Corporal Jones, Pennsylvania State Police, District Attorney Willard Curtin and Chief Sander went immediately to Philadelphia along with Gouddy. The men in custody in Philadelphia were not identified.

Bucks County Detective Fred H. Kohler and Assistant District Attorney Donald Vanartsdalen arrived in Bristol and search for the bandits was directed from the Bristol police headquarters.

Bucks County Coroner J. Alfred Rigby viewed the Sklar body and had it removed to the John Black funeral home where a post-mortem was performed by Deputy Coroner, Dr. Fred Phillips, of Quakertown.

Police were told that there were three men in the bandit gang, two of whom did the actual hold-up, and a driver left in a small black coupe which was parked across the roadway.

Police and District Attorney Willard Curtin took statements from Harkins, Gouddy and Ostroff and an intensive manhunt is underway. State Police were posted at the market.

BRISTOL'S YOUTH WEEK

Youth Week deserves the support of the entire community.
With the youths of Bristol Borough and Bristol Township participating in the various events scheduled for the week, the adults can give much encouragement by attendance at the events and in every means at their command, giving their support.

Much is said and heard these days about youths. Youths often-time become wayward or delinquent because they have not received the moral support, or friendship, or association of their elders, in their activities.

The week beginning tomorrow will afford an opportunity for adults to boost the morale of the youths of this area. Watch them upon the field of competition, cheer them in defeat as well as in victory. Let them know that the adults of this area are back of them and will support them in things which are worthwhile.
Every parent should resolve that they are going to devote next week to the youths of their households or to the youths in general in the community.

A RURAL PSYCHOLOGIST

An "agricultural short course for rural ministers" is to be held on May 29 at the University of Delaware. The day's session is designed to bring "the latest information concerning farmers' problems and means of solving them. . . The health and stability of our national life are largely dependent upon an economically sound and wholesome agricultural foundation."

The main speaker will be an "extension rural psychologist" of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. He will discuss "Understanding Rural People."

Well! Well! The times do move.
Who expected to see the day when a country preacher would be a candidate to sit at the feet of somebody with a title like that. It's ordinariness the job of rural psychologists to interpret farmers to other people, or vice versa.

The best psychologist to explain rural life to a young cityraised minister would be a retired preacher who has spent an active life catering to the spiritual needs of country people. That means one who was born on a small farm. From earliest youth he learned the meaning of the Golden Rule as it is interpreted by families who, living remotely, depend upon each other's neighborliness in work, play, sickness, or any other distress.

He is a man who has followed a plow. Most likely he can, or could, milk. In his kindly, sociable understanding way he has straightened out many a family problem with practical psychology he learned himself.

What if he isn't current with all the newest devices and schemes for improving rural life? Does he need to be? But is he qualified to help a young minister get close to a rural flock? He certainly is.

By The Rev. William S. Heist

Everlasting God, our Father in Whom we put our trust, bless the schools of our land so that they may become "nurseries of useful knowledge" and means of building noble character, and that the children may become useful and law-abiding citizens. GAMES SCHEDULED LOCALLY TOMORROW

The Franklin A. C. team and Jefferson A. C. will clash tomorrow morning on Memorial Park field in a Bristol Suburban Softball League game, starting at 10:15 a. m.

At eleven o'clock, the Lusitano Brothers team, of Tullytown, meets Fire Company, No. 1, on Leedom's field.

Because of the inclement weather the past week, team managers were forced to book the games on Sunday in order to get them in.

Monday evening, Auto Boys will play Franklin on Memorial field.

The St. Ann's Warriors, Trenton Industrial League game scheduled for last evening, was called because of rain. The game will be played at a later date.

The "Saints" play Michalski's tomorrow afternoon on Wetzel field, Trenton.

Earl Wagner will toe the slab tomorrow afternoon on Memorial Park baseball diamond as the Voltz-Texaco nine meets Willow Grove. Game will begin at two-thirty o'clock.

Wagner blanked the Willow Grove team last Sunday. The Voltzmen will be after their second win of the Tri-County circuit.

Munitions Blast Turns South Amboy Into A Shambles

Hardly a home or business establishment in the city of nearly 9,000 was undamaged.

J. E. Casey, chief engineer of the New Jersey Central Power and Light Co. plant in South Amboy, said, "The explosion hurled three eight and ten-inch shells into the building. A half a bushel of pieces of shells were strewn about the grounds and a half dozen pieces of shells were found in the plant."

Maj. Gen. Donald McGowan, commandant of the New Jersey National Guard who toured the explosion area early today, said, "It looks like a town in Europe hit by bombs during the war." The general is a veteran of the landing on Omaha Beach.

George Caldescott, 31, a laundry manager, was visiting the home of a customer two miles from the waterfront at the time of the blast. He said:

"The explosion was so strong I thought it was next door. I have seen pictures of the atom bomb test at Bikini, with its great mushrooming effect and this reminded me of it. I rushed out the door and saw a big ball of smoke. It rose instantly to a height of about 1500 feet. It was bright orange in hue."

He added:

"A half hour later a gaseous substance still hung over the area."

Charles Berson, a 35-year-old seaman, was on a small coal barge on the South Amboy waterfront at the time of the explosion. He said: "All of a sudden there was a ping and first thing I knew I went up in the air with the cabin."

"I came down hard in the bottom of the barge. The whole thing was burning. I don't know just how I did it, but I managed to drag myself onto the pier and get away from there. It looked to me like the world was burning or falling around me."

The explosion occurred while a shipment of black powder, fused powder and shells was being loaded on the barges from Pennsylvania Railroad cars. The 10 to 12 carloads were to have been transferred to an Isbrandtsen Line vessel for shipment overseas.

Live shells littered the dock area and Army disposal experts ruled it off. One shell went off at 11 p. m. three hours after the explosion.

Several other barges caught fire but were pulled away from the dock.

An injury to the power plant knocked out all lights, making rescue work more difficult. Power was restored this morning, however. Telephone lines were down temporarily. Roads leading to South Amboy were jammed with emergency vehicles. Non-emergency vehicles were banned.

The drawbridge between South Amboy and Perth Amboy was knocked out of service.

Mayor John D. Leonard, who was watching television when the explosion occurred, immediately invoked emergency measures. He said, "I thought it was an atomic bomb."

No explanation was advanced for the blast pending an investigation. The dead apparently were among the men engaged in loading the barges. One man was decapitated.

The explosion was recalled as akin to the Black Tom explosion in New York Harbor near Jersey City in 1916 which caused two deaths and a $22,000,000 damage. It was traced to German saboteurs.

The South Amboy blast also recalled the terrible Texas City, Tex., disaster of April 16, 1947, when the French nitrate ship Grandcamp blew up, touching off a series of explosions which killed 512 persons.

Tryons Attend Religious Profession of Daughter

CROYDON, May 20 — Mr. and Mrs. William Tryon and children, Gertrude, William and James, have returned from a ten days trip to Valley Park, Mo., where they attended the religious profession of their daughter, Margaret, into the Foreign Mission Sisters of St. Dominic.

Margaret, who is now known as Sister Dorothy Frances, entered the Maryknoll Order, as it is more familiarly known, about 2½ years ago, and is said to be the first girl from Croydon to dedicate her life to the Sisterhood. Sister Dorothy Frances was born in Croydon, and graduated from Nazareth Academy, Torresdale, in 1946.

On the trip to Missouri, the group stopped at Chicago, Ill., where they paid a visit to Sister Mary Lauritana, serving at the Nazareth Academy, there. Sister Lauritana formerly taught at the academy in Torresdale. The localites' return trip was made through Ohio and West Virginia. Mrs. John Stanley, Philadelphia, sister of Mrs. Tryon also accompanied them.

Croydon Market President Killed in Hold-Up of Four ket and no one was permitted to pass over the ground where the hold-up occurred.

Bristol Consolidated Fire Department was called into service early this morning to go to the scene with floodlight equipment. The entire area was searched for evidence. A revolver was found as was a shell from a revolver. The revolver was a .45 German Luger (nine millimeter). Chief Clifford Hagerman was in charge of the firemen.

An alarm was broadcast throughout the area for the bandits. The man who fired the fatal shot was described as being of stocky build.

While the search for the killer and his companions was going on, Patrolman John Loftus, of the State road and Longshore avenue station, Philadelphia, single-handedly apprehended three youths at Frankford and Linden avenues. For a time the youths, who were found to be in possession of a .22-caliber break-open revolver and bullets, were considered suspects in the case. But Ostroff and the others could not identify them.

Loftus, who was watching cars proceeding along Frankford avenue, from the direction of Croydon, several miles north of his patrol sector, pulled out his service weapon and ordered the driver of a suspicious car to halt. He directed its three occupants to stand against a wall while he radioed for help.

The youths, who later were charged with carrying a concealed deadly weapon, were taken to the State road station, where Ostroff and the others confronted them. They said they were not the bandits. Both of the bandits are described as being white, one measuring approximately 5' 6", and of stocky build, wearing what is believed to be a nylon jacket. The second of the pair is said to be 5' 7" tall, weighing about 160 pounds and wearing a brown hat and dark jacket.

State police went over the spot with a fine-tooth comb. The area was lighted by flood lights of Bristol Consolidated Fire Department, and the police searched every inch of the ground in an effort to recover the bullet.

It is believed that the bandit trio had "cased" the Safe Food Market, and that it was the intention of the three to get the day's receipts. Whether they thought the men had the receipts, or whether it was their intention to later break into the market is not known. Sklar and his co-workers, however, did not have the money with them, as it was left in a safe in the store. When the two bandits were first spotted, it was thought that they were carpenters who had been working at the market during the past few days, but when they demanded "the money," then Sklar and his co-workers realized that it was a hold-up. Sklar, it is said, was the last to drop to the ground. When the men were ordered to back up against the wall of the building, the bandits commanded "Don't move, or I'll blast you."

erect a giant super market at Penn-del. His venture at Croydon gave to him an opportunity he had long cherished—to own a modern super market. This market was opened last November.

Sklar's body was removed to Philadelphia early this morning. His wife came here accompanied by relatives and friends.

court I would have to pay the fine," said the fire policeman.

It was pointed out that the violator should have been charged with reckless driving and not following a fire engine too closely, since the Pennsylvania Motor Code states that any fireman on "official" business may follow a fire engine as closely as he chooses.

"We can get the offenders only on the charge of reckless driving," said an official. "The law about staying 500 feet behind a fire engine applies only to some one who is not on 'official business' as a fireman," the fire policeman was warned.

Another lower county fire policeman said a Bensalem township justice of the peace paid a fine himself rather than implicate a Philadelphia violator because of "some arrangement with a Philadelphia magistrate."
